

Press Release: Defence Exports 2025 – Global Compliance, Strategy, and Cooperation

LONDON, UK – 22–24 September 2025

As defence industries navigate shifting geopolitical landscapes and increasingly complex export controls, collaboration and compliance are more critical than ever. This September, SAE Media Group will welcome key stakeholders from across the global defence export community to London for the Defence Exports 2025 Conference—a leading platform for policy updates, licensing insights, and international alignment.

Chaired by Rosa Rosanelli, Head of Compliance at Patria, this year's conference brings together regulatory authorities, defence contractors, legal advisors, and export compliance professionals from over 20 nations:

“Once again, this year's Conference will bring together senior defence export control leaders from across the world to network, exchange knowledge and collaborate to discuss ways to overcome common industry hurdles. This year's audience will bring together national authorities, industry experts and specialised advisors to discuss the major challenges within the space.”

□ New for 2025: Fresh Content, Broader Perspectives

This year's conference introduces several new features, speakers, and topics designed to reflect the shifting dynamics of the defence export environment:

- New Pre-Conference Focus Day: Uncover strategies for navigating rapidly changing U.S. export controls, including ITAR and EAR.
- Wider Government Representation: Hear perspectives and guidance from government authorities across the UK, US, Japan, Canada, Norway, and Sweden.
- Technology-Driven Export Challenges: Explore how AI, cybersecurity, and advanced data analytics are shaping defence exports, with insights from RTX and Anduril.
- Special Topics: Examine the complexity of space technology exports with Thales, and assess the impact of human rights legislation on licensing processes with Rolls-Royce.
